México, tierra que dio asilo siempre a quienes lo necesitaron, acogió, hace más de setenta años, a un variado y nutrido grupo de exiliados españoles.

Los expatriados –o transterrados, como llamó José Gaos a sus compatriotas– a causa de la cruenta Guerra Civil iniciada en 1936 respondieron con generosidad al cobijo que les ofreció nuestro país e hicieron excelentes aportaciones en las distintas áreas del conocimiento. Dedicados a su trabajo con ahínco, contribuyeron también a la formación de discípulos que todavía hoy siguen sus huellas.

El 18 de julio de 2006, a 70 años del comienzo de la lucha en España, nuestra máxima casa de estudios rindió, por medio del Instituto de Investigaciones Históricas, un merecido homenaje a los investigadores del exilio español más destacados de la universidad.

Este libro presenta los trabajos que se leyeron en dicho acto, con el cual quiso expresarse el respeto, la admiración y el agradecimiento que sentimos hacia todos ellos.
